“Caledonia” is an icon band in the Spanish blues scene revered by blues fans and critics alike. During its ten-year lifespan, the band toured extensively all over Spain in the most renowned blues and jazz festivals.

In July '94 the band crossed the Atlantic to play in Chicago. The experience at Schuba's Tavern and Buddy Guy's Legend was one to remember. In November '95 they represent Spain in the Celle Jazz Festival in Hannover (Germany). “Caledonia Blues Band” released five albums.

After the split-up of the group, two of their members, harmonica Mingo Balaguer and guitarist Quique Bonal, get together to form a new band in June '96, “The Blues Machine”. The indie company Big Bang records their first work, “Here we Are”, in 1997.--- mingobalaguer.es
