In the winter of 1994 Lisa Ekdahl was brought into superstardom over night in Scandinavia. Lisa's debut album sold quadruple platinum and gave her three grammy awards. Her laid back style, matched with her fragility and sensitivity has dazzled fans and critics alike.

Several European countries and especially France has fallen for her understated way of performing jazz standards, bossanova and original songs. Lisa got her first record deal with EMI when she was hired by singer/songwriter Toni Holgersson to sing background vocals on his album. The background singing didn't turn out well but instead Lisa was discovered by EMI's head of A&R and offered to make her own record, which became the debut album "Lisa Ekdahl" (EMI).

At the age of 19 Lisa Ekdahl started to perform in small jazz clubs with swedish jazz trio "The Peter Nordahl trio". Lisa has sometimes referred to the years playing smaller clubs with this great trio as a form of "musical education."

Lisa & the trio played a series of concerts at club La Villa in the Saint Germain area of Paris which was the starting point for Lisa's career in France. Lisa Ekdahl & Peter Nordahl Trio released two albums together: "When did you leave Heaven" & "Back to earth".
