Jo Stafford is one of the top singers in the 20th century American popular music history. Her pre-war fame came with the choral group the Pied Pipers she formed in 1938 and the group's work with the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra from 1939 until 1942. As a solo singer, Stafford made many hit records for Capitol Records.

The 13 tunes contained in this CD were recorded for Reader's Digest between 1967 and 1970. Sold through mail order, the original records were soon forgotten and faded into obscurity, until the good people at the Japanese label SSJ Records uncovered them and released them on CD for the first time.

Stafford is heard here with The Pied Pipers (Track 1, 2, 9, 11), The Gaslight Singers (Track 12) and Warren Covington (trombone and vocals on Track 1 and 11). Arrangements are provided by her husband Paul Weston (Track 2-10, 12, 13), Glenn Osser (Track 1) and Billy VerPlanck (Track 11). The program consists of old and new standards, and Stafford sings and swings with deeply felt emotion with her consistently crystalline voice.
