

Stan Kenton And His Orchestra □ – Cologne 76 Part One (1993)

Written by bluesever

Friday, 12 August 2016 15:16 -

Stan Kenton And His Orchestra □ – Cologne 76 Part One (1993)

1. Granada Smoothie 2. Lush Life 3. Turtle Talk 4. Roy's Blues 5. Love for Sale
6. Body and Soul 7. Intermission Riff Alto Saxophone – Terry Layne Baritone
Saxophone – Alan Yankees Bass – John Worster Bass Trombone – Allen Morrissey, Doug
Purviance Congas – Ramon Lopez Drums – Gary Hobbs Piano – Stan Kenton Tenor
Saxophone – Roy Reynolds, Teddy Andersen Trombone – Dick Shearer, Jeff Uusitalo, Mike
Egan Trumpet – Dave Kennedy, Jay Sollenberger, Joe Casano, Steve Campos, Tim Hagans
Tuba – Doug Purviance

Stan Kenton led one of the most successful big bands from the end of the Swing era through the counterculture revolution of the 1960s. Kenton's vision was unique and he often favored bombast and experimentation over the pulse of Swing. Oddly, the musicians he hired were the swingin'est around. Art Pepper, Anita O'Day, Shelly Manne, Shorty Rogers, Maynard Ferguson, June Christy and countless others all became stars with Kenton and went on to successful solo careers. If pretension often got the best of him, much of Kenton's music was great. Songs like "23 Degrees North - 82 Degrees West," -- which incorporated Latin rhythms without conga drums -- are still amazingly vital, while such albums as City of Glass remain cutting edge Third Stream works. Kenton's reputation suffered at the hands of latter day critics who complained that his music wasn't "black" enough. Today, people are waking up to the fact that his music was special because it sounded like no one else's.

download (mp3 @ kbs):

yandex 4shared mega mediafire cloudmailru uplea ge.tt

Stan Kenton And His Orchestra – Cologne 76 Part One (1993)

Written by bluesever

Friday, 12 August 2016 15:16 -

back