Yes, it is another Celentano classic, created during his golden years of collaboration with Toto Cutugno between 1977 and 1980. Coming on the heels of his brilliant album 'Soli', Celentano captured his fans' hearts with a number of hits, such as the title song "Un Po' Artista Un Po' No" with great pace shifts and trademarked voice. Fast "L'orologia" is a great track to dance or just listen to. I personally liked "Il Tempo Se Ne Va" - it should be included in every compilation of his music. And "Se Non E Amore" flows in the same rhythm with others, creating a feeling of concept album even though it is not. ---Alex Sokol, amazon.com
