to Culiacan, Sinaloa where he lived during much part of his youth. His musical influence comes from family, his grandfather is a musician and several cousins as well as relatives are known artists.

"I never went to music school, I thank my God for giving me this talent. It is more beautiful when you bring the music heritage blood, it's the honest truth, this album has it all "

His beginnings as a musician were in school in Culiacan, a group with who represented the state of Sinaloa. Larry started writing songs from the "nose" as he says. Remember: "For eight years, I taught my corridos, my cousins and uncles who are musicians which gave me tips. Which is when I noticed changes here and there."

In addition to composing songs and corridos, the talented singer-songwriter also plays the accordion and drums. The first professional group with whom he worked with, were Los Amables del Norte whom he learned how to appear on stage. "There is nothing easy about standing on stage, grabbing a mic and sing in front of three thousand people '.
