

The Everly Brothers □ – Songs Our Daddy Taught Us (1958)

Written by bluelover
Friday, 13 July 2018 08:19 -

The Everly Brothers □ – Songs Our Daddy Taught Us (1958)

A1 Roving Gambler A2 Down In The Willow Garden A3 Long Time Gone A4 Lightning Express A5 That Silver Haired Daddy Of Mine A6 Who's Gonna Shoe Your Pretty Little Feet B1 Barbara Allen B2 Oh So Many Years B3 I'm Here To Get My Baby Out Of Jail B4 Rockin' Alone (In An Old Rocking Chair) B5 Kentucky B6 Put My Little Shoes Away Don Everly — guitar, vocals Phil Everly — guitar, vocals Floyd Chance — upright bass

The Everlys had reached their commercial peak when they made this album of sparsely arranged traditional songs, a concept that was quite a surprise from a top rock & roll act, and considerably ahead of its time. It's actually not as enduring as their early rockers and pop ballads, but the singing is superb on their interpretations of standards like "Barbara Allen" and "Kentucky." ---Richie Unterberger, AllMusic Review

Beautiful, sparse and with some of the best and most heartfelt singing of their careers - if you like Gillian Welch then you'll love this. To modern ears some of the lyrics seem corny but if you want to know the songs that influenced that melancholy and perfect harmony singing this is a great place to find out. "Put my little shoes away" and "I'm here to get my baby out of jail" are personal favourites "Down in the willow garden" is a nice example of an old timey murder ballad. ---Ute Man, allmusic.com download (mp3 @320 kbs):

The Everly Brothers – Songs Our Daddy Taught Us (1958)

Written by bluelover
Friday, 13 July 2018 08:19 -

yandex mediafire ulozto cloudmailru gett

back