Jessica Rose James, (born April 12, 1988) better known as Jessie James is an American country-pop singer and songwriter. Her debut album 'Jessie James' was released in 2009.

James was introduced to Karla Wallace of independent label Yellow Dog Records at seventeen who helped her with her songwriting and singing. One of her songs, "Gypsy Girl", written with two writers from Yellow Dog had been pitched to American Idol contestant and winner, Carrie Underwood, who put it on hold for her record, made it into the hands of record executive David Massey who brought her to the attention of L.A. Reid. She auditioned for Reid singing her song, "My Cowboy". James soon inked a contract with Mercury Records. Her debut album, Jessie James was released in August 2009, debuting at number twenty-three on the Billboard 200. Its first single, "Wanted" had been released in April and peaked at number forty on the Billboard Hot 100. She later performed in the Middle East with singer Kid Rock and comedian Carlos Mencia for US troops stationed overseas.

In September 2010 she was also featured on My Darkest Days debut album My Darkest Days on the song "Come Undone", a cover version of the Duran Duran song.
