Written by bluesever Tuesday, 03 July 2012 18:26 - Last Updated Thursday, 11 April 2019 17:08

Woodstock - Three Days Of Peace And Music 1969 – CD1

01. Richie Havens - Handsome Johnny - 5:47 02. Richie Havens - Freedom - 6:23 03. Country Joe McDonald - The "Fish" Cheer/I-Feel-Like-I'm-Fixin'-To-Die Rag - 4:53 04. John B. Sebastian - Rainbows All Over Your Blues - 3:11 05. John B. Sebastian - I Had A Dream - 2:36 06. Tim Hardin - If I Were A Carpenter - 2:52 07. Melanie - Beautiful People - 4:05 08. Arlo Guthrie - Coming Into Los Angeles - 2:24 09. Arlo Guthrie - Walking Down The Line - 5:10 10. Joan Baez - Joe Hill - 3:42 11. Joan Baez - Sweet Sir Galahad - 4:08 12. Joan Baez featuring Jeffrey hurtleff - Drug Store Truck Drivin' Man - 3:38 13. Santana - Soul Sacrifice - 11:47 14. Mountain - Blood Of The Sun - 3:30 15. Mountain - Theme For An Imaginary Western - 5:26

The three-day Woodstock music festival in 1969 was the pivotalevent of the 1960s peace movement, and this landmark concert film is the definitive record of that milestone of rock & roll history. It's more than a chronicle of the hippie movement, however; this is a film of genuine historical and social importance, capturing the spirit of America in transition, when the Vietnam War was at its peak and antiwar protest was fully expressed through the liberating music of the time. With a brilliant crew at his disposal (including a young editor named Martin Scorsese), director Michael Wadleigh worked with over 300 hours of footage to create his original 225-minute director's cut, which was cut by 40 minutes for the film's release in 1970. Eight previously edited segments were restored in 1994, and the original director's cut of Woodstock is now the version most commonly available on videotape and DVD.

The film deservedly won the Academy Award for Best Documentary, and it's still a stunning achievement. Abundant footage taken among the massive crowd ("half a million strong") expresses the human heart of the event, from skinny-dipping hippies to accidental overdoses, to unpredictable weather, midconcert childbirth, and the thoughtful (or just plain rambling) reflections of the festive participants. Then, of course, there is the music--a nonstop parade of rock & roll from the greatest performers of the period, including Crosby, Stills, and Nash, Canned Heat, The Who, Richie Havens, Joan Baez, Ten Years After, Sly & The Family Stone,

Woodstock - Three Days Of Peace And Music 1969 - CD1

Written by bluesever Tuesday, 03 July 2012 18:26 - Last Updated Thursday, 11 April 2019 17:08

Santana, and many more. Watching this ambitious film, as the saying goes, is the next best thing to being there--it's a time-travel journey to that once-in-a-lifetime event. ---Jeff Shannon, Editorial Reviews download (mp3 @320 kbs):

yandex mediafire ulozto gett bayfiles

back