When fate brought John Phillips, Michelle Phillips, Denny Doherty and “Mama” Cass Elliot together for the very first time, it was a harmonic convergence for the ages. The Mamas & The Papas were born.

During their relatively short career, from 1965 to 1968, despite enduring a never ending soap opera saga of romantic entanglements both consummated and unconsummated, the Mamas & The Papas cemented their status as one of pop music’s most accomplished and gifted vocal groups with a raft of evergreen classics numbering California Dreamin’, Monday, Monday, Creeque Alley, Go Where You Wanna Go, Dedicated To the One I Love, I Saw Her Again and Dream A Little Dream Of Me, each adorned with the outfit’s lush four-part harmonies.
